

GERMANY IS WILLING TO GIVE TERMS

WILL AGREE TO A CONFIDENTIAL EXCHANGE OF TENTATIVE TERMS THROUGH PRESIDENT WILSON.

COUNTS ON U. S. AID

Central Powers Are Said to Be Willing to Entertain Any Suggestions From America Looking Toward Peace.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Dec. 28.—Germany, it was made known here today, will permit the road to peace negotiations to be blocked by a refusal of the entente belligerents to enter a conference without prior knowledge of the terms. It has been forecasted that the entente powers would face a reversal on such a condition.

Willing to Exchange Terms.
The central powers are represented as willing to permit a confidential exchange of broad tentative terms through President Wilson, should it become necessary to do so to bridge the gap which threatens to prevent a gathering of peace delegates. There were broad intimations today that a statement of this disposition by Germany either had been communicated to the United States government or soon would be. The official text of Germany's reply to President Wilson's note arrived today and it was declared that a confidential communication had been made to the United States government. There were indications, however, that a confidential statement of Germany's position, if made, would come through the ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, German ambassador in Washington, and it is likely its receipt even would not be admitted.

Seeks Aid of United States.
Germany is said today, is looking to the United States to make every effort to bring about a peace conference and to that end is ready to consider any suggestions from the United States. As the case stands now, the German government considers it has met all the suggestions in the president's note and a statement of that effect has been made by Count von Bernstorff, German ambassador in Germany. It is stated authoritatively, never has believed that acting alone she would be able to bring about a conference and now that influence of neutrals has been brought to bear the German officials have taken their view a step further and believe they cannot be successful without assistance of the United States.

They believe the United States, in view of its vital interests in settlement of the war, would not be adverse to the aid of neutrals. It is felt the result would be without effect.

Give Terms in Confidence.
There were intimations today that Germany's position in the peace points had been conveyed by Foreign Minister Zimmermann to Ambassador Gerard at a recent conference, and Germany's terms were previously given in a confidential manner for the information of President Wilson.

It was said that Germany had no intention of asking the entente to make public the terms of the peace. The view expressed in German circles, here is that the entente delegates will be such as to admit of their acceptance. Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, who hurried back to the capital last night, after a long stay in London, is expected to return today and that he considered it in a light of optimism.

Answer Pleases Press.

Berlin, via London, Dec. 28.—Germany's answer to President Wilson, and the promptness with which it was made, had caused a good impression generally in the press. Only the anti-American newspapers have taken to dissent and they pressed the view that interference of any kind by America is intolerable. The latter papers find a certain satisfaction in the proposal of the entente to place the view that the entente is interpreted as clearly excluding neutrals in the conference.

Reply to Swiss Note.
The German reply to the Swiss note was handed to the Swiss minister today. It is on the same lines as the reply to President Wilson.

A Vienna dispatch says that the Austro-Hungarian government today answered the Swiss note by transmitting a copy of the note sent to President Wilson. An accompanying message assured the Helvetian government that the noble-minded suggestion of President Wilson met with a thoroughly sympathetic reception from Austria-Hungary.

Hungarian government regarded the Swiss action in supporting President Wilson as an evidence of the noble and humane disposition which has been since the beginning of the war, has manifested toward all the belligerents.

Regarded as Evasion.
Paris, Dec. 28.—The German reply to President Wilson's note is regarded as an evasion by the Lausanne Gazette. The Berlin government pretends to welcome President Wilson's initiative, but it really evades answering the American note as well as the Swiss note, the paper says.

Confers With Sonino.
Rome, via London, Dec. 28.—United States Ambassador Page had a long interview with Baron Sonino, the Italian foreign minister, today, in regard to President Wilson's note. Ambassador Page elucidated passages of the note which had been the subject of controversy in the Italian press, and emphasized the friendly spirit which moved the president to address the belligerent powers.

Wish Wilson Success.
The Hague, via London, Dec. 28.—A flood of cablegrams are being sent to President Wilson by trade unions, social welfare societies, religious bodies of all denominations and other organizations, wishing him success in what they regard as his efforts to bring about peace.

Russia's Stand Announced.

This photo is the latest of the new emperor of Austria to reach this country. It was made on his return to the fighting front from Vienna, where he had been called on the death of his uncle, the late Emperor Francis Joseph. General von Falkenhayn was in charge of the brilliantly successful drive on Bucharest from the north and west.

that the time has not yet arrived for peace negotiations, takes the leading place today in both the news and editorial sections of the evening newspapers. Some of them suggest that other members of the entente should follow the lead of Russia and state their terms.

Has Peace Resolution.
Washington, Dec. 28.—Representative Hull of Tennessee, said in a statement issued today, that neutral nations should exert their influence to secure the adoption in any peace treaty that may be negotiated between belligerent powers of a provision for an international trade agreement congress. Mr. Hull announced his intention to introduce a resolution in the house embodying his idea.

GERMAN NOTE CALLS DELTA A TRANSPORT

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Berlin, Dec. 28.—The reply of the German government to another of the American inquiries in regard to steamships sunk by submarines, in this instance relating to the destruction of the Norwegian steamship Delta, with Americans in the crews, declares that the steamship was chartered for transport purposes to a belligerent country and hence its destruction was legitimate.

This reply, which has been delivered to the American embassy, says that so far as possible the safety of the ship was provided for. The men were given half an hour in which to enter the boats. The weather was clear and the distance to the shore was not great. There has been no further developments in the case of the Araba.

The settlement of the Marina case, which hinges on the question whether the steamship was a government transport, is being delayed pending receipt of further advice from Washington.

MINISTERS REFUSED HEARING BY MAYOR

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milwaukee, Dec. 28.—Mayor Hoan late today told a delegation of forty ministers he would not give them a hearing on their demands to place the "id" in New Year's eve until they had repudiated their statement that Milwaukee would be "wide open" during the celebration.

The ministers then called upon Chief of Police Janssen, who informed them it was his intention to uphold the law. Most of Milwaukee's hotels have licenses conforming to the "id" ordinance, which permits of music or dancing, but the chief stated recently he would not countenance anything of a boisterous nature which may tempt at any of the hotels or cafes on New Year's eve.

TEUTONS PUSH BACK SLAVS IN RUMANIA

GERMANS CLAIM THAT VICTORY OVER RUSSIAN-RUMANIAN ARMIES IS NOW COMPLETE.

SUCCESS FOR FRENCH

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Russian troops which attempted to regain lost ground were thrust back and ejected from their new positions with heavy losses. In yesterday's fighting the Austro-German forces took 300 prisoners.

British Attacks Fail.
Unsuccessful attacks by the British on Bulgarian advanced lines in the lake Doiran regions are announced in today's army headquarters statement.

Eight aeroplanes were lost by the entente allies in yesterday's fighting in the western front, the war office announces.

Repulse German Attacks.
Paris, Dec. 28.—French troops last night repulsed German attacks near Le Cienoy, on the Somme, and upon the eastern slope of Hill 304, west of the Meuse, in the Verdun region, the war office announced today.

Beuvraignes, on the Somme front, caused great damage to the German defense. One of the episcopes was duced a crater 120 yards long and 40 yards wide.

The French flying corps yesterday attacked several blast furnaces and steel mills. The aeroplanes were aided in the attacks by two dirigibles.

Stubborn Fighting.
Petrograd, Dec. 28.—Stubborn resistance is being offered by Teutonic and their allies to efforts of Teutonic changes to expel them from the portion of Dobruja, which still remains in their hands. Practice in Ohio.
Madison, Wis., Dec. 28.—Indications are that the automobile tax is going to occupy considerable of the time of the legislature this winter. The tax commission in its report just issued, recommends that the personal property tax on motor vehicles be abolished and instead a license fee imposed based on weight or horsepower. The members of the legislature who have been arriving in Madison have been discussing the matter and there seems to be a tendency in the direction of amending automobile license legislation with a view to bringing about an increase in the highway fund. Those who favor this, point to the license fees in other states and instance Wisconsin as a state requiring a fee far below the average.

In this connection an investigation as to the plans followed by other states divulges some interesting facts. The general rule seems to be that the license fee is based on horsepower rather than a fixed tax. In most states, in addition to the license fee, there is a personal property tax.

The license fees may be divided into several classes: Graded horsepower license of two types, in some states so much per horsepower and in others a classification of cars based on horsepower with a fixed fee for each classification; a fixed license fee (Wisconsin); a personal license fee (Illinois, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, Missouri, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South, Vermont, Washington, Ohio, South Carolina, South Dakota, Texas, West Virginia, Minnesota and Wyoming. Texas is unique inasmuch as it licenses a car perpetually for $50. Minnesota has a personal license fee of $1.50. The District of Columbia charges $2 during individual ownership. Tennessee, for more than four-passenger capacities, $7.50, and four or less, $5.

In a few of the states but seven a personal property tax is charged in addition to the license fee. In a number of states where motor truck travel is becoming heavy, the question of fixing a separate tax is under discussion.

As will be indicated by the above figures, the Wisconsin license fee is below the normal charged in other states.

Few Have Fixed Fee.
Comparatively few states follow the Wisconsin plan of a fixed fee. Among them are Arkansas, with a ten dollar fee, Delaware five dollars, Kansas five, and the following states in varying amounts: Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, Texas, West Virginia, Minnesota and Wyoming. Texas is unique inasmuch as it licenses a car perpetually for $50. Minnesota has a personal license fee of $1.50. The District of Columbia charges $2 during individual ownership. Tennessee, for more than four-passenger capacities, $7.50, and four or less, $5.

The graded horsepower license fee is exemplified in California, which charges $40 per h. p., Connecticut, $30 per h. p., Maryland the same; Oklahoma, $50 per h. p. the first year, 40c the second year, and thus downward. Other states operating under this system are Louisiana, Mississippi and Virginia.

Michigan has a combination system, 25c per h. p., plus 25c for each 100 lbs. of weight.

Up to last night City Treasurer George W. Muenchow had collected a total of $3,104.90 in city, county and state taxes, and $311.85 in income taxes. During this week payments have been made.

The petition regards the one buck law as a most unsuccessful measure and the Kleinberg father of the bill which created a closed season for deer, has changed his mind about the merits of the law, for his name heads the list of signers on the petition which calls for repeal of the measure.

CARRANZA'S NOTE IS NOT MADE PUBLIC

CABRERA ARRIVES IN WASHINGTON TODAY BEARING FIRST-CHIEF'S REPLY TO ULTIMATUM.

ENVOY NOT RECALLED

Arredondo Denies That He Has Been Recalled Although Relations of Two Countries Are Strained.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Dec. 28.—Mr. Arredondo today unequivocally denied published reports that he had been recalled. Cabrera in Washington.

Luis Cabrera, chairman of the Mexican commission, arrived here from Mexico this morning bearing an answer to Carranza's demand of the American representatives that he ratify or repudiate the protocol signed at Aguascalientes, Dec. 10, 1915, which was arranged last night with Secretary Lane to submit the answer today.

The character of Carranza's reply has not been revealed, but it was generally believed that it was another suggestion for modification and contained the insistence that the American troops in Mexico be withdrawn unconditionally.

How Situation Stands.
It has been understood here for several days that if Carranza did not return such an answer would warrant a reassembling of the joint commission, the negotiations would be declared ended, and Carranza's ambassador, Arredondo, would return to Mexico. This would not amount to severance of diplomatic relations because in a strict sense there never has been any. Such a turn of course would prevent sending Henry P. Fletcher, American ambassador designate, to Mexico City, and the situation would return to the point it occupied before the commission's negotiations began.

Fire Across Border.
El Paso, Tex., Dec. 28.—Several hundred shots were fired across the Rio Grande from the Mexican side early today by members of the Kentucky National guard, whose officers declared the fusillade was a reply to shots fired from the American side.

Captain L. W. Clarke, in command of L company, Third Kentucky infantry, which did the firing, said: "I made out several men foot and on horse running up the river gorge. Firing seemed to come from several other points. We kept up our fire until we were sure the Mexicans were about to retreat. Several hundred shots were fired by us."

Villa Modifies Tactics.
That Francisco Villa has altered his attitude toward Americans and other foreigners in Mexico is the belief of friends of Villa who announced today they had appealed to him not to kill any more foreigners. This appeal was sent to Villa during his occupation of Chihuahua City. The document, it was said, reached him after a number of foreigners there had been killed, but the fact that no foreigners had been killed since Villa's occupation of Torreon was cited to show he had heeded the appeal. The message informed Villa that the world was watching his movements and urged guarantees to non-combatants and protection of foreign property.

It was said by Villa partisans here that Torreon would be established as Villa's provisional headquarters. He was said to have increased his command to 10,000 troops and it was predicted a campaign for control of the entire state of Chihuahua would be inaugurated.

CARY TO RUN AGAIN FOR SUPERINTENDENT
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Dec. 28.—State Superintendent C. Cary will be a candidate for re-election in April. While he has made no definite announcement, his closest friends maintain that he would seek another term. So far no opposition has developed and the Wisconsin Journal of Education issued today indicates that in all probability he may be re-elected.

Mr. Cary was first chosen to the position of state superintendent of public instruction in 1908. This time the election was held at the fall election. Since then the constitution has been changed in order that the position might be taken out of politics and the office filled by spring election of the Wisconsin supreme court judges. The term of office is now for four years. Since 1903 Mr. Cary has been repeatedly elected.

ALUMNI SEEK BERTH FOR NEBRASKA IN '99

The immediate cause of the action proposed by the Omaha alumni is said to be the refusal of the Missouri Valley conference to sanction the playing of one of more of the Omaha alumni in the Omaha alumni is to be held shortly at which arrangements will be made to take up the plan with the management of the university.

RESERVE BANK GETS AGENTS IN EUROPE

PLAN TO MAKE ARRANGEMENTS WITH BANKS IN EACH COUNTRY OF EUROPE AND ORIENT.

DOLLAR AS STANDARD

Will Equip American Banks With Machinery Which Will Maintain Dollar as World's Standard and Exchange.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Dec. 28.—The recent authorization given by the federal reserve bank of New York to appoint the Bank of England as its agent in London, and the probable appointment of the Bank of France as agent in Paris, and other foreign agents in Europe, will be followed in time in financial institutions in similar capacity in Japan, China and Australia.

Officials are looking to the Orient as a fertile financial field for the growth of American business and the establishment of connections there, while not under formal consideration at present, is favored by some members of the board.

To End Arrangement.
Arrangements under which the Bank of England will be appointed the London agent of the New York bank probably will not be perfected for several months. The arrangement will be made and will be followed in time by the appointment of foreign agents in Paris, Berlin, Madrid, Petrograd and other European cities. The arrangement will be made and will be followed in time by the appointment of foreign agents in Paris, Berlin, Madrid, Petrograd and other European cities.

It was with a view of equipping the banks of this country with machinery which will enable them to maintain a dollar as a standard of world exchange after the war, that the authorization was issued.

A situation directly opposite is said to obtain in regard to the Orient. Financial dealings with Japan, China and Australia, officials here feel, probably will be greater during the war than afterward, under the machinery which will be established and working under peace is declared. Bankers in those countries, it is pointed out, are still making their plans for exchange, and it is with a view to directing a part of this business to the United States that the establishment of agencies there, is a present interest of the commission.

Perfection of arrangements now pending with the Bank of England probably will entail the appointment of a committee by the New York reserve bank to visit London, or by the Bank of England to visit New York. It is regarded as unlikely that the making of an agreement of such importance would be done by correspondence. No steps have yet been taken so far as known looking to the appointment of such a committee.

Officials laid stress today on their opinion that during the war operations under the arrangement would not affect any appreciable change in the dollar's value. It is a matter of great advantage, so long as the current of trade continued in one direction.

In normal times, when the current shifts with the season, it was thought, however, that the arrangements would be found a great advantage in stabilizing exchange rates and preventing the movement of gold.

SUGGEST CHANGES IN CRIMINAL LAWS
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Milwaukee, Dec. 28.—An amendment to section 4075 of the Wisconsin statutes was recommended today by the committee on rules and procedure of circuit judges of the state supreme court. The amendment was presented to the next legislature. It provides in effect: "That no physician shall be permitted to disclose professional information of a patient to anyone except in criminal proceedings."

The committee also proposed six additional probation officers for the state board of control. A more effective way to remove the menace of the perpetual criminal was proposed in a resolution calling upon the legislature to create a distinct class of prisoners termed the habitual criminal. A habitual criminal is described as one who has been convicted of two or more felonies or of five or more misdemeanors, and whose character is such that he is morally certain if free from forced restraint, would be a constant menace to society.

If the legislature passes the bill framed by the judges, the courts will be vested with the power to send a man bound to be a habitual criminal to the penitentiary for permanent commitment.

METHOD.

Do not waste precious time from lack of method. The secret of getting through work is method. Order, it has been said, is God's first law. Let it be yours. Do not let your work accumulate upon your hands. It is not work that kills, but arrears of work. Work put off is work put on heavy interest. "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." It becomes intolerable if it be laid upon tomorrow.

STILL MEMBERS OF THE NATIONAL GUARD

JANESVILLE MEN WITH FIRST REGIMENT NOT THROUGH WITH MILITARY SERVICE.

WERE MERELY LOANED

Retain Their Enlistment Terms in the Wisconsin National Guard Organization After Being Mustered Out.

While Janesville has no military unit in actual service, there are many residents of this city who are enlisted in various companies of the First Wisconsin, which is at present en route for Fort Sheridan, where it will be mustered out of the government service. It will be a surprise to these soldier boys to learn that their terms of enlistment in the Wisconsin national guard did not end when they were sent to Texas last summer, and that they will be forced to serve out the remainder of their enlistment either as members of the various companies in which they now are, or by transfer to the Second Separate Company, located here in Janesville.

The statement. This is the information gained by the Beloit Daily News in an interview with Colonel Salzman, assistant adjutant general of the Wisconsin troops today. Colonel Salzman stated emphatically that when the troops are mustered out of the federal service they become, without further formalities, members of the Wisconsin troops and must serve as members of such unit until their term of enlistment expires. Thus the boys of Company L, on their return to Beloit will have the same status as they did before taking the federal oath at Camp Douglas preparatory to entraining for the Mexican border six months ago.

Still State Troops. When the troops are mustered out of the federal service at Fort Sheridan they revert to the status of the state troops before being sent to Mexico. There is no new blood in the ranks, no new oath to be taken and they will serve in the state militia under the terms of the Hay-Chamberlain bill until their term of enlistment expires. The difference is that now the troops are members of the Wisconsin national guard in federal service. When they are mustered out they become members of the Wisconsin national guard in the service of the state.

This information settles definitely the question on the lips of many Beloit people as to whether there would be a national guard company in Beloit after the return of the troops. Company L will not cease to exist as a unit in the state guard unless it decides to enlist on the expiration of the enlistments of the present members.

Leaves San Antonio. Colonel Salzman said that the First Wisconsin Infantry, of which Company L of Beloit forms a part, left San Antonio at noon today and should arrive at Fort Sheridan, near Chicago, either late Saturday or sometime Sunday.

From twelve to fourteen days will be required, he said, before the company will comply with all formalities of mustering out and be allowed to leave the fort. At Fort Sheridan a complete inventory of all state and federal property will be taken. Each guardsman will undergo a physical examination and his personal records of service will be checked and re-checked until they are absolutely accurate. Clothing allowances will be figured and the amount of pay due each man determined.

Clothes Question Hazy. When asked what disposition must be made of the clothing and apparatus purchased by the government by the guardsmen while in service on the border, Colonel Salzman replied that the situation in this matter was at present somewhat hazy. He said that the government will have to wear it out in service—at drills, muster, etc., he said.

Under New Law. The Janesville company, the new Madison company, the Racine and Green Bay batteries and the Second Milwaukee troop of cavalry are the only guard organizations in the state that have taken the new federal oath of three years enlistment with the colors and three years in reserve. However the men now members of other commands can transfer to the Janesville company if they desire instead of reporting for drills at their present company headquarters. If this is done it is expected that there will be a dozen or more trained soldiers added to the local company.

Sergeant Woods, 11th Infantry U. S. A., who has been detailed to aid in the drill of the Janesville company has received orders to stay here during the month of January and will continue to act in the same capacity as formerly. This will be a material aid to Captain Jacko and his command and will help them to keep the shape of their first big inspection which will come some time in February it is understood. Whether the local company will be assigned to the First Regiment or remain a separate command has not yet been determined by the Adjutant General's office at Madison.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS HAVE MANY TOURNAMENTS

Swimming Meet, Pool and Carom Tournament, Track Meets, Feature of Holiday Activities.

During the Christmas vacation the boys of the Y. M. C. A. have been unusually active in arranging a number of contests and tournaments. One of the most exciting events of the season was the swimming meet for boys held yesterday afternoon in the association pool, in which a number of the junior members took part. The results of the various events were:

Underwater diver, Frank Murray; second, George Powers. Distance, 40 feet.

Diving for pennies: First, Orville Cary. Second, George Powers.

Water polo: Game won by team composed of following men: Frank Murray, captain; Paul Knudson and Kenneth Black.

During the past few days the boys' department has also been conducting a pool tournament, which Herbert Allen won. Second, Edward Allen. Finishing men were: Howard Porter won the greatest number of games, losing only one out of ten played.

In a carom tournament Orville Cary took first honors and Kenneth Baker, second place. Both the tournaments proved popular with the boys and it is likely that the department will put on more of these contests throughout the season.

For the many boys who have made the Y. M. C. A. their headquarters during the holidays, the department has staged two water races each day over the big kitchen stove. This appealing feature of the day's activities has attracted a considerable number of boys. Much credit is due to Mr. Russell, president of the Y. M. C. A., and one of the boys' secretaries for his work in the department during the holidays.

This evening a number of the "Y" boys members of the N. U. T. club, will hold a co-ed bob ride to Milton, where refreshments will be served to the members of the club.

To eliminate healthy competition between the boys of the "Y" in a number of lines, the department has divided the total grade school month into two teams, composing a junior league. Beginning with the first of January the activities of the league will start for a six weeks season.

The first meeting of 1917 of the Hy-Y club will be held on Thursday evening, January 4th, instead of Tuesday evening. All members are asked to be present at this important meeting to discuss the matter of an inter-city track meet with the Beloit Hy-Y club.

OVERRULES MOTION TO END KELLEY CASE

Judge Maxfield Holds Alleged Keeper of Academy Street "Blind Pig" to Trial January 8th.

Overruling the motion of Attorney Edward E. Ryan for a warrant on which James J. Kelley, North Academy street boarding house proprietor is held on the charge of illegal sale of liquor, he quashed the warrant. Kelley is a non-resident of Janesville. Judge Maxfield this morning in municipal court held Kelley to trial at 10 o'clock on the morning of January 8th.

Attorney Stanley G. Dunwiddie argued as to the legality of the procedure wherein Kelley's attorney raised the question from which arose his motion that the warrant be quashed.

Mr. Ryan claimed that the issuance and serving of the paper was not a work of necessity on the Sabbath. He claimed the facts of the case showed a necessity wherein the warrant should have been issued that day.

The state's attorney on the other hand, in refuting the argument, said it was no more than a work of necessity to issue a warrant on the Sabbath for the arrest of a criminal or for he who violated the criminal laws.

SEND REPORT BLANKS TO 725 GUARDIANS

Financial Statements Must Be Returned to the County Court During Month of January.

Report blanks will be sent out tonight from the Rock county probate court to 725 guardians, who are required to submit a new annual financial statement in behalf of their wards during the month of January. The reports are carefully gone over by Judge C. H. Nelson in order to determine that the funds entrusted to the guardians are properly invested.

During the last twelve months seventy-eight guardians have been appointed by Judge Pitfield. A number have also been released, their wards having attained their majorities.

KETTLE-MICHELSON WEDDING HELD ON CHRISTMAS DAY

The wedding of Miss Leora Kettle and Mr. Michelson was solemnized on Christmas day at ten-thirty in the morning at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Kettle, of the town of Janesville. The Rev. C. E. Ewing read the wedding vows in the presence of thirty guests. Miss Blanche Wells of Footville and Jay Kettle of Janesville, cousins of the bride, were the attendants.

The bride wore a gown of net lace over white silk mull with silver trimming and carried a bouquet of white roses and white carnations. The bridesmaids wore white mull and carried white carnations. A sumptuous wedding dinner was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Michelson have gone on a wedding journey to Minneapolis and will be at home after January 1st on a farm near Leyden.

He Was Not Lascivious.

John Morley in his life of Gladstone tells the story of the statesman's examination for admission to Oxford university when he was a youth. The examiner, having utterly failed to floor the candidate on some point of theology, said, "We will now leave that part of the subject." "No, sir," replied the candidate. "If you please, we will not leave it yet," and proceeded to pour forth a fresh stream. The dean in Mr. Gladstone's day was Gaisford, famous among other things for his trenchant brevity. "This laconic gift," observes Mr. Morley slyly, "the dean evidently had not time to transmit to all of his flock."

"DRAG THE ROAD" CLUBS.

Organizations Suggested to Improve Conditions in Rural Communities.

This is the day of clubs and organizations. We have corn clubs, tomato clubs, pig clubs, church associations, Sunday school associations, reading circles and other organizations tending to lift and help the community. These are all good organizations and are doing much for the betterment of society and living conditions of today, but there is one item that is of vital interest to every one, and that is the road over which every member of these several organizations must pass. At the present time in many parts of the country this is being left with but little thought. The mail must be carried over it. The food must be gotten over it. Every meeting of either social or religious nature must be made up of persons who pass over the road. Then let us think about the road in our other gatherings. It would be time well spent.

A SPLIT LOG DRAG.

spent to have a few meetings in the rural communities to discuss ways of improving the road. There are many ways this can be done, but the most feasible and quickest is to drag the road. This is simple, and a road dragging club in every community will be the means of accomplishing this end.

The state road bureau has prepared a bulletin on dragging the roads and shows how to make various kinds of drags. Split logs make good drags. Square timbers, plank, railroad iron and many other waste materials can be used to make good drags. The drag is the cheapest method of maintaining an earth road. It will do more work for 50 cents than can often be done for $50 with pick and shovel. We need good roads in every state, and if we are to get them every dollar of money and energy applied to the roads must be done with a view of getting the most efficient results.—Southern Good Roads.

ROAD DRAG RULES.

The Colorado Experiment Station Issues Some Good Advice.

Use a light drag. Haul it over the road at an angle so that a small amount of earth is pushed to the center of the road.

Drive the team at a walk. Ride on the drag; do not walk. Begin at one side of the road, returning up the opposite side.

Drag the road as soon after every rain as possible, but not when the mud is in such a condition as to stick to the drag.

Do not drag a dry road. Drag whenever possible at all seasons of the year.

The width of traveled way to be maintained by the drag should be from eighteen to twenty feet. First drag a little more than the width of a single wheel track, then gradually increase until desired width is obtained.

Always drag a little earth toward the center of the road until it is raised from ten to twelve inches above the edges of the traveled way.

If the drag cuts too much shorten the hitch. The amount of earth that the drag will carry along can be very considerably controlled by the driver, according to the position of the cutting end or away from it.

When the roads are first dragged after a muddy spell the wagons should drive if possible to one side until the roadway has a chance to freeze or partially dry out.

The best results from dragging are obtained only by repeated application. Remember that constant attention is necessary to maintain an earth road in its best condition.

Good Roads in Colorado.

Judging from the report of the state highway commission of Colorado, the people of that state believe in the doctrine of good roads, says the Town Development Magazine. The report shows that Colorado has more money invested in roads than in all public institutions combined, including the state capitol. In round figures there are 6,000 miles of state highways and 25,000 miles of county roads, making a total of 31,000 miles of public highways in the state. This is a type of preparedness which may well be recommended to the people of the nation at large. It is preparedness both for the piping times of peace and the dark days of war, and it is all the more impressive in view of the fact that the outside public frequently thinks of Colorado as a state of towering peaks and well nigh impassable mountain ranges.

CLOTHING THIEVES ARE CAUGHT IN ACT

BY JOS. M. CONNORS

Two of Trio Who Attempted to Fill Suitcase With Suits Now Held at Police Station.

Two nobby dressed young men giving the names of John Ryan and Thomas Nolan and Chicago as their home, and their stick sticking saddy out of place behind the steel bars at the city hall station, following their attempt to rob the Zeigler Clothing company during the noon hour. The intuition of Joseph M. Connors, manager, and his presence of mind led to their arrest.

A third member of the gang made his escape as Connors, brandishing a hatchet, held the two at bay. The names as given the police are believed to be John Ryan and Thomas Nolan. Ryan, Nolan and the third man attempted to work one of the gamblers used by clothing store thieves, one member of the party holding the attention of the clerk while his companions stuffed suits, etc., in a suitcase.

The men entered the store at 12:45. Mr. Connors alone. The man who got away wished to look at a suit. He was shown several and tried on the coats, his companions meanwhile lounging around near their suitcase, while the clerk led him to the tables on which the clothing is kept.

As the one who was trying on the suit stepped forward to observe him, the clerk, Mr. Connors heard an unusual noise behind him. He turned to see the other two take a suit from the wall case and stug it into the suitcase.

Grabbing up a hatchet which lay on the counter, he backed them into the corner. The other man moved swiftly and quickly getting into his own coat made exit through the door. The man who had been trying on the suit, South Main street. He nearly knocked Frank George from his feet, so fast was he hurrying. George, not knowing the reason for all the speed, permitted the man to pass.

It is thought he caught a south-bound interurban car, as one was just leaving as he emerged from the store. He was dressed as having on a blue cloth overcoat with velvet collar and a soft felt hat. His physique was slight.

At the station Ryan and Nolan claimed that they had no companion. When caught they attempted to settle the difficulty through a bribe and pleaded with Mr. Connors to permit them to go upon payment for the suit they attempted to steal.

According to Charles Bostwick of the R. M. Bostwick company, the three tried the same game before, but a few minutes previous to their visit to Zeigler's.

One entered the store and looked at overcoats. One remained far back in the store with the suitcase as his companion walked to the front to a glass. This latter one asked Mr. Connors to come forward and show him something about the coat, but he refused, being suspicious of the other.

The third thief showed up while the two were in the rear. He was in a terrible hurry, but despite his constant calling and rapping on the counter Mr. Bostwick refused to leave the two alone in the back part of the store.

Charges of robbery are to be preferred against the men and against their companion, providing the drug store thrown out by the post, apprehends the one who escaped at noon. All cities and towns were warned to be on the lookout.

PERSONAL MENTION.

$200 per Ton Record Price For COAL

A record price for anthracite coal was established in Rochester, N. Y., last month when an Italian forfeited $10 bail by not appearing in the police court to answer a charge of stealing a hundred pounds of coal worth fifty cents. This $10 for the theft of 100 pounds was equivalent to paying $200 a ton for coal.—News Item.

Our prices are governed by the Coal Market. We know what it costs to give good quality and efficient service, but we do not know at this time what our next car of coal will cost us. Better be safe and get what coal you still need at once.

BILLY SUNDAY VS. BROADWAY, WALL ST. AND BHEMIA ET AL

New York, Dec. 28. -- Powerful forces, both sater and benign, are lining up here today for the case of Billy Sunday vs. Broadway, Wall Street, Bohemia et al, which goes to trial April 1.

What sort of a case? Sunday and his old time putting Methodist camp meeting style in the world's greatest, richest, wickedest, most material city, the subject of much speculation among the residents. He will be the biggest attraction of the Old Town has seen for years, and it is predicted that great mobs will literally fight to get near his giant tabernacle.

It will be a battle royal; and preparations are being made accordingly. Billy and Broadway have been sparring for position for several years, and now at the Evangelist is coming to fight the Devil in his own home town.

Broadway, as Broadway, seems to have paid little heed to Sunday's plans. But scratch the surface and you find that what Cyclone Davis calls the Boss of Boozie and Boodle is not so easily fooled.

The brilliant Billy, though busy with Boston is watching carefully every move in his preliminary campaign here. Already a small army of Sundayists are organizing the Big Town. On January 14th a brigade of the evangelist's most remarkable truth-tellers from every city has invaded the city.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., as one of the principal stockholders, is officially in existence in New York City. Plans for the creation of the mammoth tabernacle, the great pine and sawdust temple for the spiritually unwashed, are well under way.

NEWS NOTES--MIDLAND

The life of Ben Turpin, comedy star, reads like a chapter from the Arabian Nights. Way back in '35 he began with a medicine show. He followed this line until the middle nineties, when he met Sam T. Jack, the "burlesque king." Jack was quick to recognize talent, and shortly Turpin was posing and bullfisting as the greatest knock about comedian of the day. At this point his eyes failed and he was compelled to retire temporarily.

His sight was restored by a European specialist. Then Ben decided to be an opera singer. Failing at this, he returned to the comedy stage and made a hit as "Happy Hogan." In 1908 Ben met G. M. Anderson who took him into the pictures where he has shown ever since.

"DOUG" SEEKS ACROBATS. "The Pet of Patagonia," starring Douglas Fairbanks, caused the acrobatic star a bit of trouble as he was obliged to surround himself with a number of men who could not keep pace with him through a series of thrilling feats which required extraordinary hardiness. In order to keep these men in good condition, to prevent them from smoking, over-eating and the like, Fairbanks instituted daily races and offered prizes for the winners. The result was that he succeeded in surrounding himself with a group of men in as fine fettle as he himself--almost.

SENNETT SIGNS SHUAHUA. Mack Sennett, general director, has engaged the youngest actress in the world to appear in a forthcoming comedy release. She is Shuahua Boudien, and was only twelve days old when the press agent sent the story out. Shuahua is the daughter of Joseph Boudien, a cowboy, and her mother is a cowgirl. Mr. Boudien denies the report that the Hawaiian dance craze caused him to name the girl Shuahua.

MADE HER MAD. Gladys Hulette, movie beauty, received a letter from a girl admirer, asking for a frock when she was through using it in movies.

Miss Hulette said she would gladly do this, providing the admirer would send her one of her worn-out frocks to use in one of the many parts that she plays.

call for tatters. The young woman was mad. She wrote back, asserting indignantly: "I have no ragged dress."

Florence La Badie, the star, has completed "The Girl Who Wanted to Live," Philip Lonergan's play, directed by Frederic Sullivan. Miss La Badie in this drama portrays a girl who comes out of prison to fight the world for the things she believes are hers.

Film stars have many hobbies, and Mabel Normand is not an exception. This miss, who now heads her own company, drives one of the fastest trotters on the Pacific coast. Norma spends much of her leisure on the training course of a famous breeding ranch near Los Angeles.

NEW MYERS THEATRE.

Playgoers of this city are assured that, although they may have the good fortune to see some extra good popular price attractions this season, they have had the opportunity to view no play like "The Other Wife," which an admirable company will offer in the New Myers Theatre one day, New Year's, matinee and night. Vaughan Glaser, a successful young producer whose name has come to mean high quality in popular price houses, says that this is the most unusual play that he has ever "sent on the road," and audiences and reviewers that have seen it along the way agree with him that it is far away from the ordinary. It is a mystery drama and was written by Carl Mason, a new playwright in whom those who know his work see one of the big features of the American stage in the future. Mr. Mason, according to his friends, decided when he embarked upon his career as a writer for the stage a short time ago, that he would not be bound by some of the old-fashioned notions about play-making, but would strike out along unbacked lines and create something fresh and novel, or nothing at all. As it is practically impossible to discover new fundamental life situations, Mr. Mason took an old one for the basis of his play--the eternal triangle theme--but he has developed it in a way entirely his own. He has remoulded this old theme in a manner that almost conceals its age and that gives his stage a creation that much prized novel appeal that every playwright strives so hard for. To indicate the unusualness of his play, it need only be mentioned that the hero, who after acquiring fame, honor and a happy home, has been startled by a fearsome skeleton from his long ago, mistaken days, and has taken desperate action, is finally obliged, by the force of circumstances, to defend with his greatest force and skill a man on trial for life charges with a crime which the hero believes himself to be legally guilty, but in which he thinks he was morally justified.

NEW MYERS THEATRE.

Sparkling with clever lines, abounding in ludicrous situations, invested in pretty wardrobe and scenic atmosphere that radiates an intimate feeling between performer and audience, and interpolated with catchy music, "The Night Clerk," an abbreviated form of musical comedy, will be presented at the New Myers for four days with matinee daily, beginning tonight. The comedy, triumvirate, Cecil, as the advance agent of the undertaker, in other words a joy assassin. Jack West in the title role as the son of the idle rich--provides a thousand laughs during the hour and ten minutes' run of the piece, and when one was not busy designing fun making situations the other was at the task. "The Night Clerk" is a refreshing draft from the pen of Will M. Hough, famous architect of high class musical comedy, and music by William B. Friedlander, who presents the show and is in fact pretty much the whole thing, inasmuch as he staged the entire production. The chorus comprises twelve young ladies who look well, dance well, sing well. They are vivacious, well groomed and disport themselves in true Broadway style, giving ample support to the principals.

CHAPTER XV.

At something after two o'clock that night, K. put down his pipe and listened. He had not been able to sleep since midnight. In his dressing gown he had sat by the small fire, thinking. The content of his first few months on the Street was rapidly giving way to unrest. He who had meant to cut himself off from life found himself again in close touch with it; his eddy was deep with it.

And there was a new element. He had thought, at first, that he could fight down this love for Sidney. But it was increasingly hard. The innocent touch of her hand on his arm, the moment when he had held her in his arms after her mother's death, the thousand small contacts of her returns to the little house—all these set his blood on fire. And it was fighting blood.

Under his quiet exterior K. fought many conflicts those winter days—over his desk and ledger at the office, in his room alone, with Harriet planning fresh triumphs beyond the partition, even by Christine's fire, with Christine just across, sitting in silence and watching his grave profile and steady eyes.

He had a little picture of Sidney—a snapshot that he had taken himself, her hair blowing about her, eyes looking out, tender lips smiling. When she was not at home, it sat on K.'s dresser, propped against his collar-box. When she was in the house, it lay under the pin-cushion.

Two o'clock in the morning, then, and K. in his dressing gown, with the picture propped, not against the collar-box, but against his lamp, where he could see it.

He sat forward in his chair, his hands folded around his knee, and looked at it. He was trying to picture the Sidney of the photograph in his old life—trying to find a place for her. But it was difficult. There had been few women in his old life. His mother had died many years before. There had been women who had cured for him, but he put them impatiently out of his mind.

Then the bell rang. Christine was moving about below. He could hear her quick steps. Almost before he had heaved his long legs out of the chair, she was tapping at his door outside.

"Mrs. Rosenfeld. She says she wants to see you."

He went down the stairs. Mrs. Rosenfeld was standing in the lower hall, a shawl about her shoulders. Her face was white and drawn above it.

"I've had word to go to the hospital," she said. "I thought maybe you'd go with me. It seems as if I can't stand it alone. Oh, Johnny, Johnny!"

"Where's Father?" K. demanded of Christine.

"He's not in yet."

"Are you afraid to stay in the house alone?"

"Not please go."

He ran up the staircase to his room and hung on some clothing. In the lower hall, Mrs. Rosenfeld's sobs had become low moans. Christine stood helplessly over her.

"I am terribly sorry," she said—"terribly sorry! When I think whose fault all this is!"

Mrs. Rosenfeld put out a work-hardened hand and caught Christine's fingers.

"Never mind that," she said. "You didn't do it. I guess you and I understood each other. Only pray God you never have a child."

K. never forgot the scene in the small emergency ward to which Johnny had been taken. Under the white lights his boyish figure looked strangely long. There was a group around the bed—

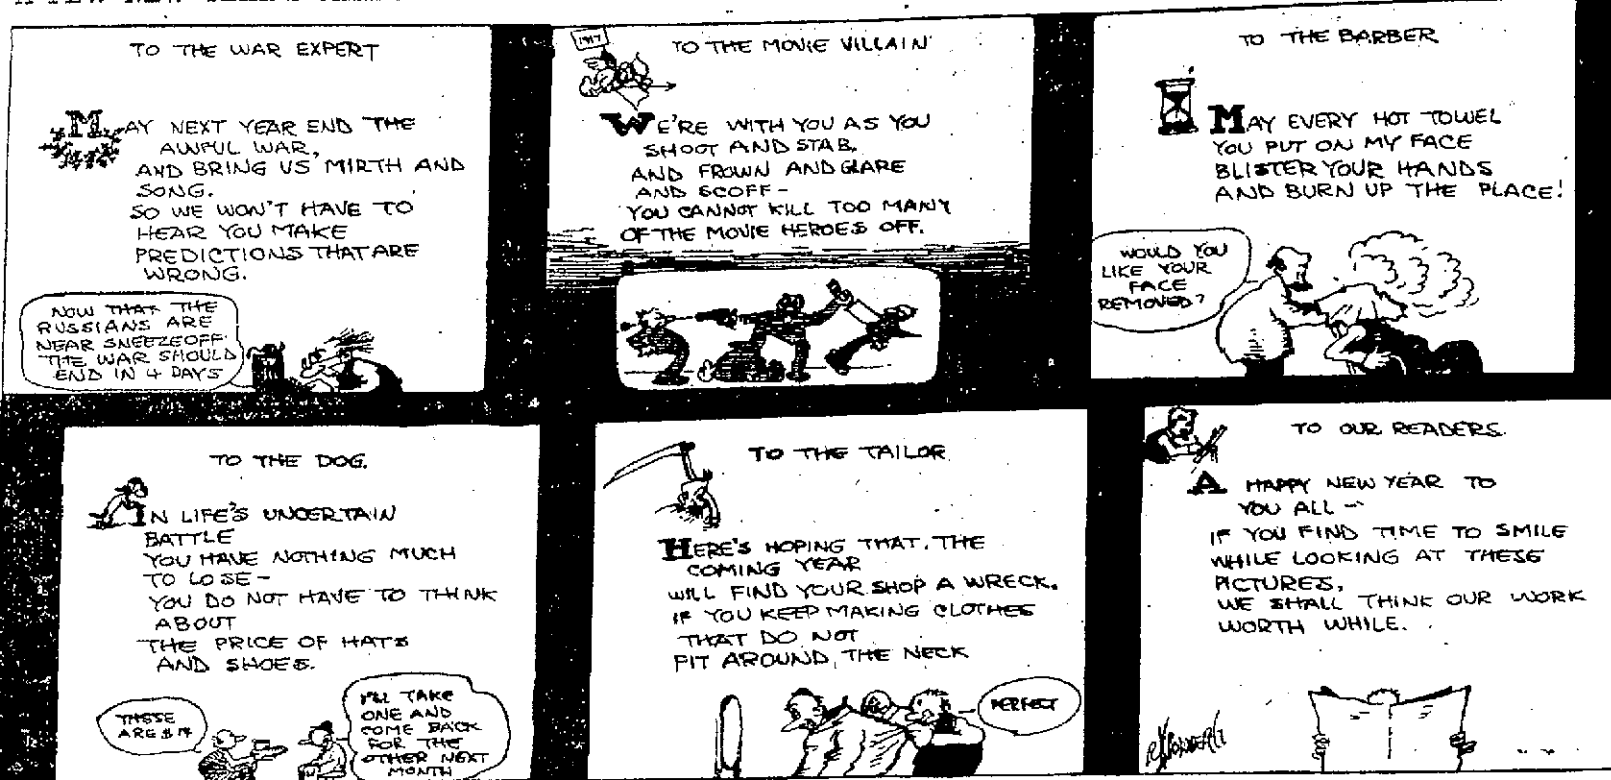

"They Say I Gave Him the Wrong Medicine."

Max Wilson, two or three Internes, the night nurse on duty, and the Head.

Sitting just inside the door on a straight chair was Sidney—such a Sidney as he never had seen before, her face colorless, her eyes wide and unseeing, her hands clenched in her lap.

A FEW NEW YEAR'S CARDS.

When he stood beside her, she did not move or look up. The group around the bed had parted to admit Mrs. Rosenfeld, and closed again. Only Sidney and K. remained by the door, isolated, alone.

"You must not take it like that, dear. It's sad, of course. But, after all, in that condition—"

It was her first knowledge that he was there. But she did not turn.

"They say I poisoned him." Her voice was dreary, infectionless.

"You—what?"

"They say I gave him the wrong medicine; that he's dying; that I murdered him." She shivered.

K. touched her hands. They were ice-cold.

"Tell me about it."

"There is nothing to tell. I came on duty at six o'clock and gave the medicines. When the night nurse came on at seven, everything was all right. The medicine tray was just as it should be. Johnny was asleep. I went to say good-night to him and he—"

He was asleep. I didn't give him anything but what was on the tray," she finished pitifully. "I looked at the label; I always look."

By a shifting of the group around the bed, K.'s eyes looked for a moment directly into Carlotta's. Just for a moment; then the crowd closed up again. It was well for Carlotta that it did. She looked as if she had seen a ghost—closed her eyes, even reeled.

"Miss Harrison is worn out," Doctor Wilson said brusquely. "Get someone to take her place."

But Carlotta rallied. After all, the presence of this man in this room at such a time meant nothing. He was Sidney's friend, that was all.

But her nerve was shaken. The thing had gone beyond her. She had not meant to kill. It was the boy's weakened condition that was turning her revenge into tragedy.

"I am all right," she pleaded across the bed to the Head. "Let me stay, please. He's from my ward. I—I am responsible."

Wilson was at his wits' end. He had done everything he knew without result. The boy, roused for an instant, would lapse again into stupor. With a healthy man they could have tried more vigorous measures—could have forced him to his feet and walked him about, could have beaten him with knotted towels dipped in ice water. But the wrecked body on the bed could stand no such heroic treatment.

It was Le Moyne, after all, who saved Johnny Rosenfeld's life. For, when staff and nurses had exhausted all their resources, he stepped forward with a quiet word that brought the Internes to their feet astonished.

There was a new treatment for such cases—it had been tried abroad. He looked at Max.

Max had never heard of it. He threw out his hands.

"Try it, for heaven's sake," he said. "I'm all in."

The apparatus was not in the house—must be extemporized, indeed, at last, of odds and ends from the operating room. K. did the work, his long fingers deft and skillful—while Mrs. Rosenfeld knelt by the bed with her face buried; while Sidney sat, dazed and bewildered, on her little chair beside the door; while night nurses tiptoed along the corridor, and the night watchman stared incredulous from outside the door.

When the two great rectangles that were the emergency ward windows had turned from mirrors reflecting the room to gray rectangles in the morning light, Johnny Rosenfeld opened his eyes and spoke the first words that marked his return from the dark valley.

"Geo, this is the life!" he said, and smiled into K.'s watchful face.

When it was clear that the boy would live, K. rose stiffly from the bedside and went over to Sidney's chair.

"He's all right now," he said—"as all right as he can be, poor lad!"

"You did it—you! How strange that you should know such a thing. How am I to thank you?"

The Internes, talking among themselves, had wandered down to the dining room for early coffee. Wilson was giving a few last instructions as to the boy's care. Quite unexpectedly, Sidney caught K.'s hand and held it to her lips. The iron repression of the night, of months indeed, fell away before her simple caress.

"My dear, my dear," he said huskily. "Anything I can do—for you—at any time—"

It was after Sidney had crept like a broken thing to her room that Carlotta Harrison and K. came face to face. Johnny was quite conscious by that time, a little blue around the lips, but valiantly cheerful.

"More things can happen to a fellow than I ever knew there was," he said to his mother, and submitted rather sheepishly to her tears and caresses.

"You were always a good boy, Johnny," she said. "Just you get well enough to come home. I'll take care of you the rest of my life. We will get you a wheel-chair when you can be about, and I can take you out in the park when I come from work."

"I'll be passenger and you'll be chauffeur, ma'am."

"Mr. Le Moyne is going to get your father sent up again. With sixty-five cents a day and what I make, we'll get along."

"You but we will!"

"Oh, Johnny, if I could see you coming in the door again and yelling 'mother' and 'snapper' in one breath!"

The meeting between Carlotta and Le Moyne was very quiet. She had been making a sort of subconscious impression on the retina of his mind during all the night. It would be difficult to tell when he actually knew her.

When the preparations for moving Johnny back to the big ward had been made, the other nurses left the room, and Carlotta and the boy were together. K. stopped her on her way to the door.

"Miss Harrison?"

"Yes, Doctor Edwards?"

"I am not Doctor Edwards here; my name is Le Moyne."

"Ah!"

"I have not seen you since you left St. John's."

"No; I—rested for a few months."

"I suppose they do not know that you were—that you have had any previous hospital experience."

"No. Are you going to tell them?"

"I shall not tell them, of course."

And thus, by simple mutual consent, it was arranged that each should respect the other's confidence.

Carlotta staggered to her room. There had been a time, just before dawn, when she had had one of those swift revelations that sometimes come at the end of a long night. She had seen herself as she was. The boy was very low, hardly breathing. Her past stretched before her, a series of small revenges and passionate outbursts, swift yieldings, slow remorse. She dared not look ahead. She would have given every hope she had in the world, just then, for Sidney's stainless past.

She hated herself with that deadliest loathing that comes with complete self-revelation.

And she carried to her room the knowledge that the night's struggle had been in vain—that, although Johnny Rosenfeld would live, she had gained nothing by what he had suffered. The whole night had shown her the hopelessness of any stratagem to win Wilson from his new allegiance. She had surprised him in the hallway, watching Sidney's slender figure as she made her way upstairs to her room. Never, in all his past overtures to her, had she seen that look in his eyes.

CHAPTER XVI.

To Harriet Kennedy, Sidney's sentence of thirty days' suspension came as a blow. K. broke the news to her that evening before the time for Sidney's arrival.

The little household was sharing in Harriet's prosperity. Katie had a helper now, a little Austrian girl named Mimi. And Harriet had established on the street the innovation of after-dinner coffee. It was over the after-dinner coffee that K. made his announcement.

"What do you mean by saying she is coming home for thirty days? Is the child ill?"

"Not ill, although she is not quite well. There was a mistake about the medicine, and she was blamed; that's all."

"She'd better come home and stay home," said Harriet shortly. "I hope it doesn't get in the papers. This dressmaking business is a funny sort of thing. One word against you or any of your family, and the crowd's off somewhere else."

"There's nothing against Sidney," K. reminded her. "Nothing in the world. I saw the superintendent myself this afternoon. It seems it's a mere matter of discipline. Somebody made a mistake, and they cannot let such a thing go by. But he believes, as I do, that it was not Sidney."

However Harriet had hardened herself against the girl's arrival, all she had meant to say fled when she saw Sidney's drooped eyes and pathetic mouth.

Dinner Stories

"Doctor," called the small boy, "come up to our house quick!"

"Who is sick at your house?" asked the doctor.

"Everybody but me. I'd been naughty, so they wouldn't give me any of the nice mushrooms pa picked in the woods."

A new postoffice was established at a small village far out west and the office of postmistress was bestowed upon the widow of a Spanish war veteran.

After a while complaints were made that no mail was sent out from the new office. So an inspector was sent to inquire into the matter.

The postmistress pointed to a big and nearly empty mail bag hanging up in a corner and said:

"Why, I haven't sent it out because the bag isn't anywhere near full yet."

Jones—that is not his name, but it will do—had the misfortune to get in the way of an automobile driven by a lady on Van Ness avenue, and was taken to a hospital, but his injuries were not serious, so he was immediately removed to the police station, where his assailant was being held.

And as soon as Jones got there the lady started in to impress him with the fact that blame for the accident was all his.

"You know, Mr. Jones," she said, "you must have been walking very carefully. I am a very careful driver. I have been driving a car for seven years."

"I've got nothing on me, ma'am," said Jones, politely. "I've been walking for thirty-four years."—Argonaut.

THE FIRST THOUGHTS OF TALCUM

MYRTLE, WE'VE GOT TO DO SOMETHING TO SUBDUCE YOUR NOSE

TALCUM POWDER

It is hard to say what we would do with our noses if it had not been for the discovery of talcum powder. We would have to do something. We might dull them with a file, or we might apply a patent dimmer, such as are used on automobile headlights, or maybe we would have to stay in the house except on dull, gray days.

"Talcum powder is mightier than gunpowder" is an epigram that we hope will become as famous as that other pretty fair epigram: "The pen is mightier than the sword."

In fact, our epigram is a little subtler, and means more. Tell it to ten of your friends.

No doubt necessity was the mother of invention in the case of talcum powder. History does not say when the first nose was powdered, but it is easy to imagine the circumstances. We will wager that some sensitive-eyed husband was driven to experiments to work out some effective gloss killer. Perhaps the first time it was used, the woman was strapped to a tree and powdered with a long pole.

Then discovering the pleasant absence of glare with her own eyes, she begged for more.

Samson lost his strength, his composure, and his goat, when his hair was shorn. Deprive a woman of her vanity box, to-day, and she is as lost as Samson without his locks.

Redhead Won't Tell

"Now what am I to think of that?" demanded Topsy Cottontail, when he saw that Foxy Squirrel really meant to go off and leave him.

"I'm doing a thing that's a simple question," You see, Topsy hadn't yet learned that there's a difference in questions; that while it's all right to ask questions about anything in the big world, or anything that concerns oneself, it is never kind to ask a question about the affairs of someone else. That's something that's hard for folks to learn, so it's not much wonder that little Topsy Cottontail did not know it, is it?

VALUE OF FOOTBALL TOLD ATHLETIC MEN BY AMHERST TEACHER

New York, Dec. 28.—In an address on "The Value of Football," delivered at the eleventh annual convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association here today, Prof. Raymond Garfield Gettell of Amherst college said:

"A phenomenon of frequent occurrence in widely separated times and places has been the intense general interest in games or contests manifested by those peoples who held the leading place in the civilization of the day. The Olympic games in Greece, the gladiatorial contests in Rome, and the tournaments of the middle ages alike were characterized by the enthusiastic zeal of those actively engaged by the presence of a crowd of frenzied spectators, and by the interest and attention centered upon them by the public at large. All these athletic carnivals were subjected to severe criticism in their age, yet they increased in popularity in spite of opposition, and declined only with the decadence of the peoples interested in them. Changes in the nature of the contests, and in the methods of their conduct, have been numerous. In the modern world, Teutonic peoples hold the reins of power, and among them the game of football, in its various forms, has become the most popular and the most widely practiced. One explanation of this phenomenon, using football as an example of modern type, is here attempted."

As might be expected, football has been subjected to unusually severe criticism. The danger to life and limb, the accompanying evils of gambling, professionalization, and unsportsmanlike methods, the enormous expenditures, the comparatively small number of who actually take part in proportion to the thousands who watch, the false standards created in the minds of growing school boys, the over-emphasis on athletics in general in colleges and universities, these are some of the direct criticisms that the sport has been compelled to face.

In spite of these criticisms and these defects, however, football has become, during the present season, the pre-eminent sport, especially in American schools and colleges. The football "star" is a college hero; ambition to make the team is an ambition of the mind of many a student, and pride over football victories is a powerful stimulant to loyal college spirit. Nor does public interest in the game show signs of decline. Each Saturday during the season thousands assemble to witness the contests, additional thousands, even in the remotest parts of the country, crowd around the radio, and still other thousands turn first to the sporting columns of the Sunday morning newspapers. A game that inspires such widespread devotion and such intense interest, and that underlies principles of human nature, is not a contest between individuals. It is a contest between groups of teams. The union of eleven men under their captain typifies the characteristic human factor of organization. In no other game is individualism so unduly emphasized, and in no other game is the team spirit so much emphasized. The success of almost every maneuver depends upon a detailed division of labor, a distinct part being assigned to each member within the machine; and the success of a team in competition with others depends mainly upon the perfection of its organized team work. Football, therefore, demands co-operation, the subordination of the individual interest to the welfare of the larger unit. It reproduces on a small scale that process of organized social effort by which man first attained supremacy over the world of nature, and by which more highly organized and more closely co-operating peoples have conquered and surpassed their less advanced rivals.

"Football, while retaining the virtues of physical combat, remedies its worst evils by emphasizing organization, co-operation and obedience. These necessitate self-sacrifice, subordination, mutual aid and fair play. They discipline the individual, teach self-control and inculcate principles of honor and loyalty. Especially do they build up an ideal."

"More than any other sport it retains the vital elements of physical combat, and necessitates an exhibition of all its essential factors—strength, speed, skill and cunning. In addition to this primitive lust for battle, it satisfies the higher and distinctly civilized interest in organization, co-operation and the skilled interrelation of individual effort directed to a common purpose. It typifies the highest human achievement in its unusual emphasis on discipline and obedience, on the subordination of the individual to authority and law. Finally, in its purpose, and in its spirit, it satisfies the highest craving of the human soul, the striving for an ideal."

Sport Snap Shots MORRIS MILLER

It will be noted that the spring exhibition tour of the New York Giants and the Detroit Tigers does not touch Southern league territory. There is said to be a reason.

The Pittsburgh Pirates will play two games at Birmingham late in March and other games are to be booked at Chattanooga, Memphis and Louisville on the way north.

Manager John McGraw announces that his rookies will gather at Marlin late in February for a "house party" and start actual training on March 1. The regulars will report one week later.

The veterans of the Brooklyn team are said to be delighted with the idea of going to Hot Springs again to train. They figure that the baths will put them in shape and give them an edge over the youngsters.

Reports have it that because of his continued illness Charley Starr, manager of the Little Rock Travelers, will give up baseball and that the Little Rock club will be found looking for another manager.

Reports from San Francisco say that Cliff Blankenship, former manager of the Salt Lake Coast league team, will be leader of a team in the Northwestern league next season, but the team he is to lead is not indicated.

Charley Dooin's independence in considering offers made him may be due to the fact that the garage in which he is interested in Philadelphia is doing a profitable business. Dooin had to turn down his regular vaudeville offer this winter.

The story that the Portland franchise of the Coast league might be transferred to Sacramento proved to be all bunk. The Coast league made one mistake when it let Seattle go, and it is not likely to make another like it in the case of Portland. It could use Seattle in its business now.

The shift by the Chicago Cubs of Pitcher George Pierce to Kansas City was a great disappointment to Roger Bresnahan, as Toledo fans had insisted that Roger get the pitcher back. Bresnahan, however, was helped, as the Cubs never had relinquished claim to Pierce during his service with Toledo.

The Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction company has purchased the Federal league ball park in Indianapolis. The park covers about seven acres of ground within a few squares of the central business district of the city, and is to be used as a site for new interurban freight terminals for all the interurban lines entering Indianapolis.

Announcement that Charley Schmidt would be the Memphis team's first catcher next season caused a howl from the partisans of Buddy Rue, who insists that the St. Louis youngster is the better man of the two. However, Schmidt may himself settle the argument, for he still says he won't play in the Southern league.

Because of illness the vaudeville engagement of Pitcher Al Mamaux, the Pirates' sweet singer, was cut short. The theatrical pace was too fast, Mamaux lost ten pounds in weight and he's not a fellow who can afford to lose poundage, either. He'll rest now and try to get in shape for the next summer.

The Tulsa club announces that Lige Woolley will be retained as manager, but that every player on the team except Cliff Brady is for sale or trade. Brady seems to be a coming second sacker. Woolley, however, may decide to retain both Lamb and third and Smith in short, the season field, with possibly Flowers remaining on the pitching staff.

MUST BAR INFLUX OF ALIEN HORDES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
New York, Dec. 28.—World spiritual progress as well as advancement of American ideals will be best encouraged by helping the "discontented millions of Europe and Asia to stay in their own country and work out there for themselves what our forefathers worked out here for us," it was declared here by Professor Ward of Harvard University. He spoke on "The War in Relation to Eugenics, a Problem for the United States," before the American Genetic Association meeting in conjunction with the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"It is in the highest degree un-American for us to permit any influx of alien immigrants as will make the process of assimilating our foreign population any more difficult than it already is," Professor Ward added.

"I am satisfied our policy of admitting freely practically all who have wished to come, instead of helping the introduction of political, social, economic and educational reforms abroad, has delayed progress of those very movements in which we, as Americans, are vitally interested."

Had the millions of European immigrants who have come to this country remained at home, he said, they would have insisted on reforms there. The discontent of Europe, he said, has "found a safety valve by flying to America."

Circassian Walnut.
That popular wood for furniture, Circassian walnut, is sold by the pound or the ton and not by the foot. As early as 116 B. C. it was introduced into Italy from Persia. Russia is the chief source of Circassian walnut. The logs are so heavy that they will not float and are sold from the forest with their bark on. Only the heart of the wood is used, and it is the crooked irregular logs that possess the best figured wood. Even very old trees rarely have a clear length of more than ten feet.

Circassian Walnut.
That popular wood for furniture, Circassian walnut, is sold by the pound or the ton and not by the foot. As early as 116 B. C. it was introduced into Italy from Persia. Russia is the chief source of Circassian walnut. The logs are so heavy that they will not float and are sold from the forest with their bark on. Only the heart of the wood is used, and it is the crooked irregular logs that possess the best figured wood. Even very old trees rarely have a clear length of more than ten feet.

CUB OWNER PRAISES HIS LATEST MANAGER

Chicago, Dec. 28.—Charles H. Weegman, president of the Chicago Nationals, considers Fred Mitchell, the new manager of the club, "a baseball wizard."

"The fact that I took him instead of George Stallings, manager of the Boston club, shows what I think of him," Weegman said. "I could have had Stallings if I had wanted him. Stallings probably could not get up more enthusiasm at the start of the season, but Mitchell, I think, will arouse more at the finish."

Mitchell will come to Chicago soon after the first of the year to assume charge of the team. Three trades are being made. Al Denaree of the Philadelphia Nationals and Frank Snyder of the St. Louis Nationals are two of the players wanted by Chicago.

BILLY SULLIVAN QUILTS AS TIGER PITCHER COACH

Detroit, Dec. 28.—"Billy" Sullivan will not coach the Detroit battery men next season. The former manager of the Chicago American league club recently wrote to President Navin that he would remain on his Oregon range unless he received word, and over the wire he decided to get along without a special battery coach. Slaughter and Spencer, veteran backstops, probably will have full charge of the pitchers.

LEAVE CHEAP SEATS, SAYS BAN JOHNSON

Chicago, Dec. 28.—President B. B. Johnson of the American league, is opposed to making any reduction in the number of twenty-five cent seats in American league parks. The National league at its recent New York meeting voted to cut down the number of bleacher seats in certain cities.

"We will cut down expenses before even considering an advance in prices or limiting the number of cheap seats," said President Johnson.
